

Sonata

for flute solo

consensus

Baku - 1997

Eastern philosophers recommend us to be in an accocdance with our thoughts, words, and actions. Could we follow this rule? Could we ever find some consensus between our chaotic feelings, wishes, and everyday lifes? Our behavior is a reflection of our inner dialogs that are mirrors of our undestanding what we are as individuals. Our everyday efforts to understand ourselves and fight through every hardship are reflected in our inner dialogs.

I hope that this short explanation helps to feel the idea of the sonata for flute "Consensus".
